BY MAXINE GORDON

MAXINE GORDON from The York Press writes about International artist and musician Sarah Güsten-Marr's recent visit to Liberia.

Sarah's visit to Liberia was for charitable purposes - to support health education and art in Liberia. She visited with fellow Liberian Eugenia Shaw, founder of HIV and AIDS Action for Liberia (HAAL). Sarah, a successful painter who runs GM Gallery at her home in the Vale of York, was chosen to be the overseas representative of the Arts and Crafts Society of Liberia. During her visit, she set up a monthly arts prize and plans to stage an exhibition of the winners at the Liberian Embassy in London and at her own gallery in 2016 or 2017.

The picture above was taken at the orphanage Güsten-Marr visited. Some of the children at the orphanage had parents who could not feed them.
